

Trouble ends; link up made with laboratory

HOUSTON (UPI) — Exhausted after a long and frustrating day, the Skylab 1 crew Friday donned white spacesuits and used an unorthodox emergency procedure to "hotwire" a broken docking latch and link their Apollo command ship to America's first orbiting space station.

"Hey!" shouted mission commander Charles "Pete" Conrad. "We got a hard dock (firm linkup) out of it!"

"Way to go," cried capsule communicator Richard H. Truly. His voice was almost drowned out by cheers and whistles from others in mission control, where most of Skylab's top management and many astronauts had gathered when the docking problem cropped up.

The successful docking attempt took place over the Pacific Ocean, and Conrad reported it at 11:53 p.m. EDT when he came into radio contact with the tracking ship Vanguard off the east coast of South America.

"We've had our problems and you've had your problems," he said, looking back on the previous 21 hours. "We have eaten dinner and would like to hit the pad (and get some sleep). We'll press on the first thing in the morning." Mission control told the crew: "go to bed."

The emergency docking latch repairs were a strenuous task for Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz. But mission control said the only alternative would have been for their Apollo to back a safe distance away from the unmanned Skylab and spend the night "station keeping."

The docking troubles developed after the astronauts tried — and failed — to free a jammed solar cell wing that has left the orbiting laboratory overheated and underpowered.

"We were still unsuccessful in the other attempts," Conrad told ground controllers at 10:35 p.m. EDT after more than two hours of trying to dock with Skylab using more conventional techniques.

"We're prepping to remove the back end of the (docking) probe cover now," he said. "We'll go EVA (depressurize the cabin and open its nose hatch to the vacuum of space) in a minute."

Almost an hour later, Conrad reported the EVA—the crew's second of the day—was underway.

Communications problems, caused by the fact that the spaceships were passing over only two or three ground tracking stations in each 93-minute earth-orbit, complicated the effort by keeping the astronauts from talking to mission control most of the time.

A tiring procedure under any circumstances, the crew's efforts were made all the harder this time by the fact the astronauts had only hours before labored in the bulky spacesuits trying—and failing—in their first attempt to salvage the crippled Skylab.

The Apollo command ship's refusal to link up with a docking port on Skylab came less than 12 hours after the crew's blastoff from Cape Kennedy and only minutes after the astronauts reluctantly gave up their Skylab repair efforts for the day. The astronauts had been up since 3:45 a.m.

Lompoc Valley joins nation to commemorate Memorial Day

Lompoc Valley residents joined the rest of the nation today at the start of a three-day weekend that will culminate in Memorial Day.

Real estate dealings of President revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has sold 23 acres of property surrounding his San Clemente, Calif., home to his friend and sometimes host Robert H. Abplanalp for $1,249,000, the White House announced Friday.

The sale reduced Nixon's holdings at San Clemente to 5.9 acres, in which he has invested a net of $374,514, the White House said.

The President invested more than $1.6 million in the estate, but the exact amount had never been made public.

Abplanalp, the Bronxville, N.Y., inventor of the aerosol can, loaned the Nixons $625,000 in July, 1969, to help them make the down payment on a 26-acre tract of real estate including Nixon's bluff top home, now known as La Casa Pacifica.

The White House statement said that on Dec. 15, 1970, the President sold to an investment company — established by Abplanalp for the purpose of acquiring the property — all but the 5.9 acres which Nixon originally had intended to use as his home site.

The White House issued what it described as a comprehensive statement on Nixon's property holdings in response to a report in the Santa Ana Calif., Register that the $1 million mortgage on the Nixon estate had been paid off, apparently with contributions left over from his 1968 presidential campaign.

The White House termed the account "totally unfounded."

The statement contained a chronological recap of Nixon's San Clemente real estate transactions. Although the most recent of the deals is more than two years old, many of the details had not been made public previously.

Nixon bought the oceanside home, which he uses as his official legal residence, in July, 1969. The $1.4 million purchase price for a 26-acre tract was purchased with a down payment from Nixon which included the proceeds from the sale of his New York apartment combined with a loan of $625,000 from Abplanalp. A $1 million mortgage was placed on the property.

In September, 1969, the Nixons acquired an additional 2.9 acres of property adjacent to their tract for $100,000 — paying $20,000 in cash with a $80,000 mortgage.

On Dec. 15, 1970, the Nixons sold the 23 acres they did not want to the investment company established by Abplanalp. The price of $1,249,000 included cancellation of the $625,000 loan from Abplanalp, the assumption of the remainder of the mortgage on the 2.9 acre tract and assumption of $560,000 of the $900,000 mortgage remaining on the original property.

As a result of the 1970 sale, not previously disclosed, the Nixons retained the 5.9 acres they originally wanted. Their net investment in that property included $251,000 of the original purchase price plus $123,514 in improvements that they had ordered on the home and its grounds.

'Fairness, fearlessness' is pledge of Richardson

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Elliot L. Richardson was sworn in as attorney general in the midst of the Watergate scandal Friday, pledging himself to "fairness and fearlessness" in safeguarding individual rights and pursuing the truth.

In an unusually elaborate White House ceremony, apparently intended by President Nixon to underscore the importance of Richardson's new assignment, the government's new chief law enforcement officer acknowledged that "the institutions of our government are under stress," but predicted they would endure.

The crowded audience in the White House East Room gave Richardson a standing ovation when he entered. His wife, Anne, held two Bibles as Richardson took the traditional oath from Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, swearing to "defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic..."

Among the guests was Richardson's predecessor, Richard G. Kleindienst, who resigned April 30 because of his personal or professional relations with major figures in the Watergate affair.

Others included former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird — whom Richardson had succeeded at the Pentagon less than four months ago — and former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Nixon said he thought Richardson "will be one of the ablest men ever to hold the office of attorney general of the United States."

New mobile home rezoning requested

The agenda for Lompoc Planning Commission's meeting Tuesday night consists of two public hearings and both are suggested for continuance.

One is on the request of Henry H. Diel and Associates for rezoning on 38 acres between Barton and Central Avenues for a planned development mobile home park. The parcels are presently zoned R-1, single family residential.

The second hearing is on the request of William A. Culberson for a conditional use permit to clear the way for Jose Rodriguez to establish a bakery and tortilla shop at 138 North D St.

The Community Development Department suggests that both items be continued, although the commission has the option to do so or not.

The commission will also review the city's capital improvement program and acknowledge a letter from the Housing and Urban Development agency recertifying the City of Lompoc's Workable Program for Community Development which is effective until May 1, 1975.

The commission's zoning committee is scheduled to meet briefly following adjournment.

Market basket prices show record increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The annual cost of a typical family's market basket of food rose 1.6 per cent to a record $1,480 in April. But the gain, less than half the March rise, was the smallest since the current food price boom began four months ago, an Agriculture Department report showed Friday.

The report also showed that for the first time in six months, most of the retail price hike was due to higher charges by middlemen rather than farmers whose returns rose more slowly. Returns to farmers for beef and pork in the market basket fell last month, although higher middleman charges pushed retail beef prices to another new record and left consumers only a fractional drop for pork.

The market basket is a collection of U.S.-raised farm foods needed for a theoretical "average household" of 3.2 persons. Its $1,480 annual rate cost in April was 1.6 per cent, or $22, above the $1,458 rate in March; 10.7 per cent ($142) above last December's rate of $1,338; and 14.3 per cent ($184) above the April, 1972 rate of $1,296.

'Alarming speculation' over sex scandal in Great Britain

LONDON (UPI) — A member of Parliament said Friday "alarming speculation" still is sweeping parliamentary lobbies in the wake of the sex scandal resignations of two government ministers. Another member said "maggots of permissiveness and decay" were devouring the country.

Lord Lambton, undersecretary for the air force, and Lord Jellicoe, leader of the House of Lords and lord privy seal, resigned this week after confessing "casual" relations with call girls. Both have denied any security risk.

The latest rumors said other prominent figures may be involved. James Wellbeloved, a Labor party lawmaker, demanded that Prime Minister Edward Heath act to quell it at once.

"Alarming speculation about the call girls scandal is still rife in Whitehall (London's government district)," Wellbeloved told newsmen. "This is extremely grave and it must be dealt with immediately by Mr. Heath."

But John Pardoe, a Liberal party member of parliament, said, "Mr. Wellbeloved is a sanctimonious creep of the first order. He assures us, with his hand on his heart, he is only after the facts. He's a muckraker. It is just political voyeurism."

Government officials said Heath has ruled out any "witch hunt" into the private lives of lawmakers.

Viet discussion on 'everything'

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. presidential envoy William Sullivan said Friday he and South Vietnamese officials were discussing "everything that's wrong" with the four-month-old cease-fire agreement.

"What we are doing in Paris is reviewing the implementation of the accords and seeking measures to improve the implementation," Sullivan said. "We've been doing that with the North Vietnamese and we're discussing with our South Vietnamese friends just what all that is going to mean as far as the future is concerned."

Asked if it would be accurate to say that he was discussing the 10 or 11 issues which the South Vietnamese and the Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG-Viet Cong) have been unable to solve, Sullivan replied, "We'd like to cover everything that's wrong—yes."

In the meantime, the Hungarian delegate to the International Commission for Control and Supervision (ICCS) charged Friday the crew of the Air America helicopter that crashed April 7 killing the nine persons aboard was on a mission which had "nothing to do with" ICCS business.

Military rule in Argentina ends

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Peronist Hector J. Campora, fulfilling a campaign pledge, began freeing political prisoners Friday within hours after assuming the presidency of Argentina and ending seven years of military rule.

His inaugural was marked by massive demonstrations by hundreds of thousands of Peronists with scattered street violence resulting in at least 35 injuries.

Campora, a follower of former president Juan D. Peron, had pledged that the day he took office he would free political prisoners jailed during the past seven years. The new president himself was briefly jailed in 1955 after a military coup overthrew the labor-based government and sent Peron to exile in Madrid.

The first prisoners to be freed began leaving Villa Devoto Jail in Buenos Aires at 11:26 p.m. to the cheers of thousands of Peronists who who had demanded the release.

The voucher plan

Perhaps the most exciting educational experiment of the century is tentatively scheduled to take place in New Hampshire this fall. Top level officials within the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare are doing their best, however, to abort it. Mr. Thomas K. Glennan, Director of HEW's National Institute of Education, is appalled a) at the prospect of the voucher plan for schools just to begin with; and b) extra-appalled that the plans to go ahead with an experiment in New Hampshire have not been sufficiently encased in bureaucratic concrete.

The following is a specimen of the kind of language that issues from Mr. Glennan, the extinction of which, I mean the language not Mr. Glennan, is presumably one of the objectives of American educational reform: "A more careful job of negotiating for a feasibility study should be done," he has written. "It should be done with input from the NIE and from the OEO people who have been involved in past voucher activities. No attempt should be made to mount an operational program next fall but rather the fall of 1974 should be the target date."

The OEO is the Office of Economic Opportunity, whose bright young men have been pushing for the New Hampshire plan which is modeled after the prescriptions of Professor Milton Friedman. That model is not to be confused with Christopher Jencks', which is said to be in operation at Alum Rock Union School District in California, but actually isn't: wherein hangs a tale.

Milton Friedman's plan is quite simple. Let us suppose that your state is spending $1,000 per year per student. The parents, under the plan, would receive as many vouchers as they had children. Each voucher would be turned over, along with a child, at any school public or private that commended itself to the parents. The schools would send in their vouchers to the state treasury, which would remit $1,000 per voucher received. The purpose of the program is to encourage individual initiative in education, to eliminate the inequity of double taxation for those who patronize private schools, and to encourage, for those who cannot now afford it, the kind of variety of choice available only to the wealthy.

Mr. Christopher Jencks, a resourceful socialist, meanwhile came up with his voucher plan which is so heavy with qualifications as to be, in the end, not very interesting. The plan is described in an OEO memo as forbidding "schools to discriminate by income or merit...Parents could not supplement vouchers from their own incomes and every school with more applicants than places would have to conduct a lottery. Also, minority candidates would have to be accepted in the same proportions in which they applied, and 'compensatory vouchers' would create an incentive for accepting low-income candidates."

"The differences between the Friedman and Jencks proposals," OEO Assistant Director Daniel Joy sums up neatly, "reflect the philosophical primacy which Friedman gives to liberty and Jencks to equality."

Now over at Alum Rock, under the supervision of Mr. Glennan when he was at OEO, they took the Jencks' plan and then added so many other qualifications to it that no one quite understands why it is considered to be a testing ground for the voucher principle. But Mr. Glennan, who undertakes to speak also for Mr. Frank Carlucci, the Deputy Director of HEW, is obviously opposed to the Friedman plan, and enthusiastic about the Alum Rock plan, which whatever it is, is not a voucher plan.

The experiment, which would involve only a few thousand students in New Hampshire at a cost of only five million dollars, has the enthusiastic backing of Governor Meldrim Thomson, Jr. and of New Hampshire's assembly. HEW wants more of what they call in Washington "feasibility and implementation studies." The OEO people point out that F & I was done on Alum Rock ad nauseam and that really, "it oughtn't to be necessary to reinvent the wheel." The coming collision between the doers and the naysayers will presumably take place on the desk of HEW Secretary, Mr. Casper Weinberger, who when he was in California showed himself hospitable to experimentation. It might go on to Mr. Nixon's desk, perhaps with a covering note reminding him of his pledges in 1968 to do what might be done to spare the private schools. Meanwhile, as one meditates the constipating effect of monopoly government in failing to free up monopoly schooling, one hopes that a reformed school system would in turn reform an invalid government system.

'General' budget support

The County Taxpayers' Assn. announced this week it is "generally supporting" the proposed $7,850,000 1973-74 county revenue-sharing budget proposed by County Administrative Officer Raymond D. Johnson which has run into adverse criticism from community groups and several county supervisors.

Chester Knutula, executive secretary of the association, said it is felt Johnson's program reflects "responsible uses of revenue-sharing funds."

He claimed that the funding recommended by Johnson which leaves out all social programs requested and special district programs, while advocating $2-million for a new north county jail and over $500,000 in added county parking facilities, will not set up new programs requiring substantial amounts of taxpayer funds.

At the same time, Knutula declared his office is working on an analysis of the proposed 1973-74 county budget which exceeds $76 million.

He said the association will take the stand at the public hearings starting June 6 that "there is room for a decrease in the budget...and we are convinced it can be cut."

Knutula added: "The question is whether we can convince the supervisors." Knutula has gone on record that a 10-cent property tax cut can be achieved in the coming year. Johnson has merely said his proposed budget could avert a tax increase. The current rate is $3.46 per $100 assessed valuation.

A card lets lonely know someone cares

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a long-time reader of Dear Abby and am constantly amazed at the people who sign themselves, "UNLOVED, SAD, LONELY, UNWANTED, FORGOTTEN, DESPERATE, etc."

I am no "Abby," but I do know that these people need to get involved with others, and oftentimes the way to solve your own problems is to try to bring happiness to someone else.

Sometime ago I called a nursing home and asked them to send me a list of patients who seldom, if ever, received mail, packages, cards or visitors.

When the list arrived I was first amazed, then saddened. I expected three or four names, but there were 21 names on it. Because the list was so long, obviously presents were out, as I have limited means, so I started sending greeting cards to my 21.

There are many opportunities during the year to send them a bit of cheer. Birthdays, Christmas, Valentine Day, Easter, the list is endless, even just a "friendship card."

I just sign it, "Your friend," but they know someone cares and it lifts their spirits. It doesn't cost much spread out over the year, and it doesn't take much time. If only one person reads this and calls for a list, it could spread a lot of cheer.

If clubs, churches, or other organizations would adopt this plan more people could be reached. These older people have learned from yesterday, and they live for today. Let's put a little sunshine into their lives.

DEAR CAMILLE: Thank you for a beautiful suggestion. If this idea catches on, you'll have started something that will bring inestimable happiness to thousands. Bless you.

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Jules C. Stein, 77, an ophthalmologist who founded Music Corporation of America in 1924 to handle bookings for musicians, announced Tuesday he will retire next month as chairman of the board of the firm. MCA, which has grown to one of the giants of the movie and television industry, is the parent firm of Universal Pictures.

Carrying extra gas on trip is dangerous

County Fire Department officials said today, people planning on carrying extra gasoline in their cars over the Memorial Day weekend because of the gas rationing, are courting danger.

According to County Fire Chief John Risdon, this can be extremely hazardous, and the Santa Barbara County Fire Department does not recommend it.

If extra gasoline must be carried, two basic safety rules should be followed.

First, only approved containers should be used. An approved container will have either an Underwriters Laboratory (U.L.) label on it or be approved by the California State Fire Marshall.

Second, never carry gasoline in the passenger section of the car. The fumes from the gasoline can easily overcome passengers in the car, and the fumes are especially hazardous to any small children that may be sleeping in the car.

The County Fire Department would like to discourage all persons from carrying extra gasoline in their cars, but whenever it is necessary safety rules should be followed explicitly.

Catterlin wants tiff to halt

Supervisor Charles F. Catterlin declared Thursday from his bed at Cottage Hospital that he "doesn't want this misunderstanding with supervisor (James M.) Slater to continue."

Catterlin, confined to the hospital since last weekend with a severe back ailment, said he wanted to "clarify" matters revolving around a tiff which broke out last Monday at the Board of Supervisors session between his administrative aide, Raul Navarro, and Slater, concerning a proposed Goleta Valley auto center.

The Santa Barbara supervisor explained he had learned from Navarro that there had been only two voice votes affirming a resolution by Slater against granting a continuance in the case.

Since only three board members were in attendance, he said it was "only natural" to raise a legal question if the motion had passed, since three votes seemed needed.

Navarro raised the question later before the board, at his request, said Catterlin, and this precipitated sharp words directed at Navarro and Catterlin by Slater, who seemed provoked at the "interference," declared Catterlin.

Navarro's queries brought an opinion from County Counsel George Kading that the board had in reality voted 3-0 and legally passed the motion. Kading said that although Supervisor Curtis Tunnell explained he had remained silent, his silence was constructed as an affirmative vote.

Catterlin said he was also concerned because of reports to him the board had not granted a continuance although auto center attorney Dal Hanst had requested one.

"As long as I have been on the board, I have advocated granting a continuance where an attorney sought one when he was not able to attend a hearing," said the Santa Barbara lawyer.

However, Hanst's letter asking for a continuance, if one had been sent, was not on file, and auto dealer Tom Williams had asked for the continuance in his place.

The auto dealers were asking for a new look at their request for a general plan change from residential to commercial on property to locate an auto center. The Planning Commission had turned them down.

Frost endorses 'hot tub' book

BY DICK PAUL
County Supervisor Frank J. Frost, of Santa Barbara, hit the front page of a weekly newspaper in his district this week in an article illustrated by the photograph of a "bare-breasted young woman" which said he has openly endorsed the practice of "hot tub" communal bathing.

The Carpinteria Herald ran a two-column reproduction of an asserted "startling paperback book" on the back of which Frost's endorsement of the communal bath idea appeared.

The cover photograph, according to the Herald article, shows "four men and four women, featuring a bare-breasted young woman her arms outstretched, all presumably enjoying the group bathing."

The Herald article

claimed Frost, 42, a University of California at Santa Barbara history professor, termed Santa Barbara County as "the hot tub capital of the world," and gave his endorsement of hot tub bathing as a supervisor and county official rather than as a private citizen.

Frost was not available for comment after the article and stimulating accompanying photo hit the streets in Carpinteria and elsewhere. But his administrative assistant in the county building in Santa Barbara — Richard Duprey — said he had scanned the article and photograph of the bathers.

"I don't think the article says anything improper about Mr. Frost," declared Duprey. "And it's his privilege to make statements from time to time on a number of things. Besides, Mr. Frost has a hot tub of his own at home."

A former UC Santa Barbara librarian who came aboard as Frost's assistant when the professor was elected new First District Supervisor last November, Duprey predicted "Frank will probably laugh when he sees this article."

Duprey also predicted the article would undoubtedly bring on an increase in sales for the book.

The Herald said a county employe had forwarded the book to the newspaper. Its account said Frost endorsed the book in a "back cover blurb."

The endorsement stated Frost as "inviting readers of all origins... to help spread this most civilized of customs through a deserving world."

Pictures of "at least five nude women, somewhat removed from the hot tub, are shown in the gallery of photographs," according to the Herald article.

"Kenneth Palmer, former advertising man and twice Assembly candidate, is shown enjoying one of the hot tubs with a group," the Herald article continued.

COUNTY vote-counting machines, which represent an investment of more than $650,000, are to be moved from the basement of the County Administration Building to the nearby Courthouse basement despite concern expressed about the wisdom of such a move by County Clerk J. E.

It has been Lewis' contention that the election bureau and machines should be kept in the same building to assure efficient and speedy election counts.

The un- easy rider

By STAN TULLEDO
Feature Editor

It isn't easy to be a paperboy. You must be responsible or quickly learn responsibility. Every day those papers have to be delivered.

It doesn't matter if it's raining or your buddies have thrilling plans that afternoon. It doesn't matter if one day you just don't feel like getting up and riding your bike around town to throw newspapers at porches, sometimes missing the target and having to retrieve it.

District managers don't like sloppy work. Then there is the responsibility of collecting and handling money. You have to pay your monthly bill. So every month you knock on the appropriate doors to collect. Many times the people don't have the money or they're not at home and you have to come back.

But district managers don't want to hear a lot of excuses at the end of the month. They want your bill paid.

Being a paperboy, you also learn to work with people, as you can see.

Mike Berry, 1213 W. Airport, knows all about the hard life of a carrier-salesman. There are unglamorous parts like wet papers, complaints, customers moving out and not paying their bill, having to leave your friends at the beach to go throw your route, and the unsympathetic eyes of a district manager.

Mike has been a Lompoc Record carrier for 5 years, 10 months now. But May is his last month. Congressman Charles M. Teague appointed Mike to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado.

Mike was 11 and 3/4 years old in 1966 when he applied for a Record paper route. He stood 4'11" and weighed 90 pounds. Today he is 18, stands 6'1", and weighs 170 pounds. He is a senior at Lompoc High School.

Maybe one could say being a paperboy is a growing experience.

During tenure as a carrier, Mike delivered papers to 80 percent of all the houses on his route area. He had a minimum number of service complaints, and always had his monthly bill in on time to receive his bonus. So reports Mike's district manager.

Mike says his father wanted him to get a route to teach him responsibility.

"But I got a route for the money. I was getting $1 and $2 allowance a week," he said.

Mike explained that he kept his route through high school because of the little amount of time he had to invest for a $40 a month income. He folds and delivers his papers in less than an hour.

Also, "there weren't many jobs around," he notes.

So, Mike is giving up all this responsibility and money. Come July he leaves his 57 customers. They have grown to know Mike well and depend on his punctual service.

Now his customers will have to take the chance of getting some young, inexperienced kid who has yet to learn about carrier responsibility. But the kid will learn through the unrelenting demands of the district manager.

For Mike there will be no more $50 in tips at Christmas along with packages of Life Savers, chocolate-covered cherries, and homemade cookies and fudge. And the usual $4 in monthly tips that will be gone too.

Mike is trading all this to be an Air Force cadet. In return he gets summer boot camp, harrassment from upper classmen, and three weeks leave time and two weekend passes in his freshman year.

He'll wear a cadet uniform everyday to class and he'll deal with people who'll make his old district manager look saintly.

And talk about responsibility ...

Mike Berry

Stopping a 2000 lb. bull with positive thoughts

Looking at the photo of Gary Leffew riding a mean and kicking bull, one can wonder what the cowboys in the background are thinking:

"Don't tell me he is going to do it again."

"What's this guy got."

"I hope he falls on his backside and never gets up."

"Come on, Leffew, you've won enough."

Up on that bull's back his face grimaces, but at a table over lunch, Leffew talks happily and unpretentiously. He readily tells how he became one of the highest rated bull riders in the Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit today.

"In 1967, I started reading books on positive thinking. It's actually a form of self-hypnosis where you go through a 21 day meditation period. You go through mental exercises for relaxation and then picture yourself as what you want to be."

"You are actually changing your self-image. Your self-image is sort of a blueprint in your subconscious mind of what you are and what your capabilities are; and try as you will you'll never go over what your subconscious says you can do. Your willpower and subconscious are at each other. Your subconscious always wins. The only way you can overcome it is to change your self-image."

Leffew practiced these mental exercises and pictured himself as the world's champion bull rider winning $25,000 a year. At the end of 21 days he felt like the person he had projected into his mind.

Gary Leffew

And while on the 1967 circuit, Leffew kept a lot of positive quotes around and kept reading back through the books. Result: he tripled his earnings that year from $7,000 to $21,000, and he continued to make $20,000 a year riding bulls until 1970. That year he won the national bull riding championship, which alone is good for $25,000.

Also, in 1970 he won the national finals, the world series of rodeo.

Leffew believes that the positive thinking program caused him to reverse the worry process.

"When you think about a 2,000 pound bull that ain't never been ridden before and wants to hurt you and step on you, you really get a lot of negative thoughts and you worry about bad things happening to you, and it's not too hard for it to happen if you think about it."

"When you think about riding a bull you have to think about what you want to happen and block that bull out of your mind. You try to concentrate your mental energy on yourself, what you want to do and what you want to happen ... when I get on a bull I have him defeated in my own mind before I even climb on," he said.

Leffew, 28, is from Santa Maria. Now he lives with his wife and five-year-old son in Arroyo Grande on their ranch where he operates a bull riding school.

He began riding bulls for excitement in 1963. Until he started the positive thinking program, Leffew was just another bull rider, he said.

He has told many rodeo cowboys about such books as "Psycho-Cybernetics" and the 21 day meditation period. They read the books, but don't practice the mental exercises.

So, now when he shows for the many rodeos held across the U.S. yearly, the other bull riders expect him to win.

Leffew continues practicing the mental exercises and re-reading certain books. In fact, he will soon leave his family for a 21 day retreat to the mountains to meditate and prepare himself to start rodeoing in July.

Since December Leffew has been out of action with a broken leg. A bull named Short T stepped on him in Oklahoma City. (Editor's note: Leffew will judge at the Elks Rodeo at the Santa Maria Fairgrounds, June 1, 2, and 3.)

LSHS's tremendous year — a European trip, awards

It has been a tremendous year for the photography department at Lompoc Senior High School, according to the teacher Jay Ratcliff.

One student won a six week

European study tour. Two students won three $100 awards of excellence. Seven students won a total of 12 $20 honor awards.

These awards and the European tour puts LSHS as one of the two top high schools in the only nation-wide photography contest, the Scholastic Photography Awards Program (SPAP), sponsored by Scholastic Magazine and Eastman-Kodak Company.

Over 60,000 students from more than 1,500 high schools in 50 states enter the SPAP competition. Awarded are 184 honor awards, 16 awards of excellence, and three scholarships (one the study tour of Europe).

The LSHS winners are: Debbie Claroy, honor award, black and white.

William Heiden, Scholastic International Study Travel Scholarship (based on his portfolio); two honor awards, color.

Deni Obermire, four honor awards, black and white; honor award, color; award of excellence, experimental and creative design.

Emily Payne, award of excellence, color; award of excellence, experimental and creative design; honor award, color.

Larry Robertson, honor award, experimental and creative design.

Renee Tichy, honor award, experimental and creative design.

WITH POSITIVE THOUGHTS, Gary Leffew rides this wild bull at a South Dakota rodeo as cowboys in the background envy his abilities. Before 1967, Gary says he was just another bull rider.

Tark beats Oral

Roberts to punch

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jerry Tarkanian, new basketball coach at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, claimed Friday that Oral Roberts University was just spinning its wheels in trying to persuade Houston high school all-American Eddie Owens to attend the Tulsa, Okla., school.

"I have Eddie's signature on a national letter of intent in my desk drawer," Tarkanian said Friday.

"I got it late Wednesday night at the Owens' home in Houston."

Tarkanian said Owens was his "biggest catch yet but the hardest work I have ever gone through."

Owens averaged 31 points last season to lead Houston's Wheatley High to a state championship.

Other nationally rated prep stars obtained for Las Vegas include Lewis Brown, Los Angeles; Jackie Robinson, Inglewood, Calif.; and Robert "Jeep" Kelly, Pittsburgh.

Actress sacks Oilers' QB

Pastorini blitzed by a blond

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

PHOENIX, Ariz.—(NEA) —Miss June Wilkinson served conversation in her drawing room one recent night. The subject was Dante Pastorini, a handsome hunk of pasta fazole.

Miss June is, uh, an actress. A lot depends on your point of view. It can be 46, 21, 37 or 32. The last figure is her reported age.

Dan Pastorini is her fiance, also the quarterback of the Houston Oilers professional football team. His transposed age figure of 23 has caused some consternation among those who remember Mamie Van Doren and (the late) Lee Meyer, another notable entente of sports and the theater. Or Jane Russell and Bob Waterfield.

The view from the drawing room was empty seats toward midnight. Miss June, done up in toney make-up and a slinky blue outfit with long slits up the side, her long flaxen hair elegantly framing her face, sat primly on the edge of a sofa.

It was on stage at the Windmill Theater where she was closing a run in a bit of fluff titled "Pajama Tops" in which she had reached Broadway a half dozen or so years ago.

The opening night of a revival tour in Houston, June met Dan through the auspices of a lady columnist and in no time at all they were out scouting the Grand Canyon in northern Arizona as a potential wedding site for a sunrise ceremony.

"It would have been," June now concluded, "a bloody mess. There was snow. We had to use chains. It was freezing."

Current plans for making her Mrs. Pastorini are to keep it private and for her to learn a lot more about football American style.

She is, after all, a lass from East Bourne in Sussex far outside London who got her start in the theater playing, yes, Little Red Riding Hood. She crossed the Atlantic at the age of 17, her chest preceding her, and it has always been thus—the most notable equipage of her career.

DAN PASTORINI (7), left, got used to being blitzed by opposing linemen last season as a Houston Oilers' quarterback. Now, however, he has also been blitzed by British-born actress, June Wilkinson, right.

She had seen one football game pre-Pastorini involving a team she remembers as the Philadelphia Eagles. "I have seen Dan in one game," she added. "They were playing San Diego... what are they?" the Chargers. She smiled brightly. Pleased.

"I understand," she continued, "being 'blitzed.' The smile was still sweet.

An indelicate subject had to, uh, be brought up. June is, politely, some years older than Dan.

"It bothers me," confessed June, "that it bothers other people. It's not important to us. I've never admitted my age. I'm tired of hearing it. It's how we get along mentally, physically, spiritually.

"Dan has one of the most marvelous attitudes I've ever come across in my life. You can call him names and slice him in pieces and he'll come up smiling.

"Dan is a handsome man but in the theater you're used to being around handsome people. More important, he's beautiful inside. When I met him, he didn't come on with the corny remarks."

You see, June, who likes to swim for recreation, is used to being told she can't possibly sink. "Boring," she scoffed when her buoyancy (physical, not spiritual) was noted once again. "There are two me's. Comments don't bother me when I'm appearing on stage. When I'm off-stage, I get self-conscious."

All right, so what, as they say in boxing parlance, are her chest measurements unexpanded?

"I really don't know any more. Whatever the figure was, for a long time I thought it was part of my name."

For the record, she is five feet seven inches tall and weighs a uniquely molded 125 pounds and digs health foods. Dan, whose family owns a restaurant at Sonora in the foothills of the California High Sierra, digs pasta.

"I've started him looking at labels," beamed June, "when he shops. I'm a terrible cook. I said I'd go to cooking school. He said he'd teach me."

It all sounded very domestic.

"Dan comes first," said June on cue. "I've never been married. I never felt like being married. I don't think people who are married should be apart. My personal life is very personal."

She has given up "Pajama Tops" because "I promised Dan I wouldn't do it any longer — it's a fun show; it's a lot of laughs."

It came out "lofts" in her persisting British accent. And she really "cahn't" understand the furor over her marrying a nice American boy like Dan Pastorini.

"If I had any anxieties," she shook her head, "it would be about him being hurt."

From a blitz, that is.

CHIP FROM TALL GRASS
CALLS FOR WEDGE SHOT

Playing short chip shots from long grass around the green is a problem that bothers four players almost as much as it does weekend golfers. A master of this type is Julius Boros, twice winner of the U.S. Open championship.

"Ordinarily, a chip shot this close to the green would call for a long-rolling shot but the thick grass will slow down the club so much that this is impossible. I play this shot with a wedge and imagine I am blasting from sand. Position the ball forward, opposite your left foot, and open your stance.

"Swing the clubhead into the grass about two or three inches behind the ball. The wedge's wide flange rides through the grass under the ball, producing a high trajectory for the ball to land softly on the green with very little roll."

Eagles drop dynamite on Hillmen

BIRDS ON A WIRE or Vultures? Saving the price of admission, a hearty group of Cabrillo partisans (above) perched atop a roof overlooking the field. Right, Eagle Mark Padjen slides home safely around the lunging tag of Conq catcher Kit Hubbard with the third of 14 El Seg runs.

By SCOTT OSTLER

Cabrillo's dream season came to a nightmare end yesterday in the wind and rain on the Hill. Mother Nature furnished the wind, the El Segundo Eagles took care of the rain, in the form of 16 base hits and a lot of runs.

Final score was 14 to 1, pending a recount.

For the Conqs, the games lasted about three hours too long. They would have settled for the zero-zero tie at the end of the first inning. Cabrillo made a fatal mistake in showing up for the second inning.

The Hillmen, however, can be comforted by the fact that they were trounced by the team that will probably win the CIF 3-A playoffs, barring a bus breakdown on the way to the ballpark.

And, when the sound of the ball pinging off the El Segundo aluminum bats has died from their ears, the Conqs can look back on the finest baseball season in the school's history.

The Cabrillo student body was ready for the Eagle invasion. There were pennants, flags, posters, hot dog stands, public address announcers, a pep band and a huge crowd of fans.

But the Eagles spoiled the festivities by living up to their awesome scouting report. They battered a string of five Cabrillo pitchers for those 16 hits, including two homers and two doubles; took advantage of six walks and four hit base batsmen; and got outstanding pitching and sharp defense.

El Segundo sent 45 batters to the plate. Twenty-seven of them got on base, 14 scored and 11 were left stranded.

The Eagles scored four in the first, one in the second, then dissipated what little suspense was left with a five-run fifth.

The Conqs staged a sixth-inning comeback when Bucky Brockett led off with a single, went to second on a ground ball, and scored on a double-error pickoff play.

El Seg pitcher Phil Briese went the route, striking out only three, but walking only two and getting more than adequate fielding support. Shortstop Tom Soto, in particular, made several outstanding plays.

Soto was also one of the many Eagle bat stars. He and Matt Mullins each went 3-for-4. Two of Soto's hits were doubles and he drove in four runs.

Cabrillo fortunes hit rock bottom in the fifth, when Dave Long led off with a very long home run over at least one fence in right field. Bill

Boyer, the second Cabrillo pitcher, hit Briese and then delivered another gopher ball, this one to Mark Padjen, also to right field.

To the credit of the Cabrillo fans, most of them stuck it out through the fireworks, though it's possible they were just too cold to move.

The Conqs didn't get their first base hit until the fourth inning, at which time they were already down by five runs. Brockett got that single, but was later tossed out at third as he optimistically tried to move up from second on a grounder to short.

Conq Coach Dick Wilson, believing that misery deserves company, emptied his bench and got 21 men into the game.

Actually, losing the game by 13 runs is probably more merciful than losing by one. There are no "ifs" to ponder, no single crucial plays to haunt the players.

"We'll be out there Tuesday practicing for next year," said Wilson.

Giants, Cincy toppled

Dodgers close in on the lead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willie Crawford smashed his first grand slam homer ever in the fifth inning Friday night to erase a 3-0 New York lead and the Los Angeles Dodgers went on to defeat the Mets, 6-4.

Losing pitcher Jon Matlack had no-hit the Dodgers through four innings while the Mets built a 3-0 advantage.

But an error by Bud Harrelson and singles by Manny Mota and Ron Cey loaded the bases for Crawford with no one out in the fifth. The Los Angeles outfielder then lined a 2-1 pitch into the leftfield pavilion for his fourth homer of the year to thrill a Cap Night crowd of 53,625.

Los Angeles, in snapping a two-game losing streak, added what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth. Bill Buckner opened with a double, took third on a passed ball and came home on Joe Ferguson's sacrifice fly to center.

Matlack, the National League rookie of the Year in 1972, was making only his second start since suffering a concussion after being hit by a line drive against Atlanta on May 8th. The loss dropped his record to 2-6.

Expos 5 Giants 2

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ron Hunt's ninth inning single and a double by Ron Woods were the key blows in a three-run ninth inning rally Friday night that carried the Montreal Expos to a 5-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Tim Foli, whose seventh inning single tied the score 2-2, opened the ninth with another single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored the winning run on Hunt's single.

Woods delivered Hunt with his double and scored himself on a pair of wild pitches by San Francisco reliever Randy Moffitt.

Mike Marshall, who pitched three shutout relief innings, gained credit for the victory, his fourth in seven decisions.

Angels 5 Brewers 3

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Vada Pinson homered and drove in another run with a triple to lead the California Angels to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Friday night.

The win broke a three-game losing streak for the Angels and was the third straight defeat for the Brewers. Clyde Wright worked the first 6 2-3 innings and allowed all three Brewer runs before posting his third straight win after opening the season with five losses.

Pinson led off the fifth with his second homer of the season to deep left center to put the Angels ahead 2-1 and his triple was the big blow in the sixth as California put the game out of reach with three runs for a 5-2 lead.

The Brewers took a 1-0 lead in the first when Bob Coluccio opened the game with a triple and scored on Ellie Rodriguez's single.

Terry beats Beck in 2-mile

Lompoc's Terry Williams outran defending CIF and state two-mile champion Curtis Beck of Santa Monica High on the last lap last night to take the two-mile title at the CIF Southern Section Masters' Meet at Citrus College in Azusa.

Williams was clocked in 8:55.2 to Beck's 9:02.0. Beck won last year's CIF meet in 8:48.8.

Terry's teammate Alvin Gilmore took a second in the mile behind Barrie Williams of North Torrance and ahead of Bellflower's Bob O'Brien.

Both Lompoc High athletes qualified for the next week's State Championship meet in Woodland, near Sacramento. The top five finishers in each varsity event earned a ticket north.

Cabrillo hurdler Roland Solomon took a sixth in the 120 yard high hurdles to miss a State Meet bid by one spot, although some observers thought that Solomon was fifth. Films of each event will be reviewed tomorrow by CIF officials and changes are possible.

Lompoc's Tim Costa ran his lifetime best and a school record 1:55.2 in the 880, but finished sixth when he had problems finding the finish line and leaned for the tape too soon. He had been running third. Costa was not alone in having trouble with the chalk lines, which caused problems in several races.

Williams and Beck, who have carried on an intense personal duel for prep distance supremacy in the past few seasons, ran neck and neck for the first seven laps, pulling away from the rest of the field at about the second lap.

Surprisingly, although the pace was not red-hot, Williams outkicked Beck in the last lap, running it in about 63 seconds and leaving Beck 15 to 20 yards behind at the tape. Last year it was Beck whose fabulous finishing kick finished off Williams.

They'll go at it again next week. Laguna Beach freshman Eric Hulst almost caught Beck at the tape, clocking a fine 9:04.0.

In the mile, Gilmore took over the lead in the second lap and led until the final 220, when Barrie Williams took over. Barrie clocked 4:09.8, Gilmore 4:11.3, and O'Brien 4:12.0.

Cabrillo frosh-soph runner David Taylor finished sixth in the 220, and Lompoc's Rodger Fabing finished out of the money in the varsity two-mile with a 9:25.
